Seeing with the Eyes of the Heart

A mystery hidden from the foundation of the world was revealed to Saint Paul. He called it the mystery of the Gospel: In Christ, the All in all, all things are being re-created and united. Paul prayed the eyes of our hearts would be enlightened to experience this mystery, that our inner being would be made strong to know and experience a boundless love so powerful that it raised Christ from the dead. This was Saint Paul's way of describing a transformation of consciousness, not just seeing something different but a different way of seeing. We will explore practices that prepare us to receive and live into and out from this mystery of love that transforms how we see.

1. The Heart as the Spiritual Faculty

Enlightenment

The enlightenment of the eyes of your heart

1:17-23 I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in knowledge of Christ, the eyes of your heart having been enlightened and growing in enlightenment for you to know what is the hope of God's calling, what are the riches of the glory of God's inheritance in the saints, and what is the surpassing greatness of God's power toward us who believe according to the working of God's might and strength. Which God exercised in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at God's right hand in the heavenly realms ... and gave Christ as head over all things to the church, which is Christ's body, the fullness of the one the all in all filling.

The strengthening of your inner being

3:14-19 For this reason I bow my knees before the Father, from whom every family (social grouping or tribe) in heaven and on earth derives its name. I pray that according to the riches of God's glory God may grant you to be strengthened in your inner being with power through the Spirit, that Christ may dwell through faith in your hearts, in love you being rooted and grounded, in order that you may be made strong to lay hold with all the saints what is the breadth and length and height and depth, and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowing, in order that you may be filled up into all the fullness of God.

The Heart of Centering Prayer. Cynthia Bourgeault, p. 54:

According to the great wisdom traditions of the West (Christian, Jewish, Islamic), the heart is first and foremost an organ of spiritual perception. Its primary function is to look beyond the obvious, the bounded surface of things, and see into a deeper reality, emerging from some unknown profundity, which plays lightly upon the surface of this life without being caught there: a world where meaning, insight, and clarity come together in a whole different way. Saint Paul talked about this other kind of perceptivity with the term "faith" ("Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen"), but the word "faith" is itself often misunderstood by the linear mind. What it really designates is not a leaping into the dark (as so often misconstrued) but a subtle seeing in the dark, a kind of spiritual night vision that allows one to see with inner creativity that the elusive golden thread glimpsed from within actually does lead somewhere.

2. Contemplative Vision and Practices for being Present in the Heart

Some scripture references to perspective and practice:

Philippians 2:5-8

You have the mind which was also in Christ Jesus, who though he existed in the form of God did not regard equality with God as something to be grasped, but emptied himself taking the form of a slave, in the likeness of humans becoming; and sharing in human nature he humbled himself becoming obedient unto death, even death on a cross. (Also see I Cor. 2:16 "But we have the mind of Christ.")

I Thessalonians 5:16-18

Always rejoice. Without ceasing pray. In all things give thanks.

Galatians 5:22

The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness (or generosity), faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control.

The goal: Don't be taken out of Presence (Bourgeault)

The ultimate goal: "To integrate the active and contemplative dimensions of reality within us and around us" (Keating)

3. Descriptions of the Process

The Process of Awakening

Our ultimate goal is to integrate the active and contemplative dimensions of reality within us and around us, which some mystics call ever-present awareness, enlightenment, or waking up. To handle the details of living a human life without being distracted from this primary vision is not attained through thinking, but through what might be called the practice of just being.

To take time just to be, which is to do nothing but be in God's presence for a regular period of time every day seems to be the shortest access to the mystery that is beyond any conceptual consideration. It leads to a communion with God that is more intimate than anybody can imagine or foresee. Divine love never stops coming but waits for us to shed the obstacles in us to awaken fully to the Divine Presence within us.

It's better to use the word "awakening" than "discovering" because "discovering" suggests effort, and even when effort is good, there is still some ego at work. It takes a while to perceive what the obstacles are. We may ruin our health with extreme bodily asceticism and die too soon. The spiritual journey normally takes a long time.

If we experience emotional suffering, there is probably something we haven't quite surrendered yet. If we truly surrender everything we possess, we will know the right thing to do spontaneously, and action inspired by the Spirit is where Centering Prayer is preparing us to go. It grows into contemplative prayer as presented in the Christian contemplative tradition. Saint

John of the Cross writes that those who practice meditation keep moving to ever-deeper interior levels until they reach their inmost center, which is where God dwells and is waiting for us. ...

At some point in the spiritual journey, there is a shift where you realize that the best knowledge you can have of God is no knowledge. That means letting go of every thought, memory, rigid belief system, harmful forms of cultural conditioning, as well as all possessions. It doesn't mean you despise the values of belief systems because most people need some kind of discipline of mind and body in the beginning. The process of awakening normally takes time. Where is it going and where does it end? It ends in God, which is to say it never ends.

Thomas Keating from June 21, 2021 Contemplative Outreach Newsletter

The Absence of Resistance to God

“Life is a process of increasing intimacy with God and of relaxing into the present moment by accepting and consenting to whatever is happening, including our thoughts.

The wear and tear of daily life tests the level of our spiritual growth. If we can maintain the peace of mind that is present during the time of prayer in external difficulties and in the feeling of powerlessness, our spiritual maturity is clearly advancing. As we practice centering prayer and learn to listen to the sound of sheer silence something quite sacred is happening. Silence is not the absence of noise but the absence of resistance to God.” Thomas Keating

Wisdom Jesus. Cynthia Bourgeault, p. 181: “It is not about giving up things we want or rolling over and playing dead. It is about connecting with an energy of sustenance so powerful and vibrant as it flows through our being from the infinite that all else pales in comparison. It not only flows through our being; it is our being.”

Another Dimension: Participatory or Collective Consciousness

“Making every effort to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace”

From Presence:

We become witnesses or observers of our own thoughts (including feelings and emotions) (Martin Laird's mountain and weather)

We can become witnesses of the thoughts of others (within our selves and outside ourselves)

We can begin to learn to observe the process of our thoughts, that is, how we think and feel not just what we think and feel.

This observing the process of our thoughts can mature into seeing the many layers of assumptions, beliefs, etc. that are the “thoughtless” starting places of our thinking.

The more we become present to this deep depth of Presence, often referred to as our true self and deeper yet the Divine Indwelling ending in God Who/Which has no end, we hold the thoughts, feelings, emotions, and experiences of others. Here we fully discover our common humanity, our unity as the body of Christ, and become collective, participating in the consciousness of the One Who is the All in all.

On the one hand, there is nothing to do. We just are. Just being. Pure being. Deciding nothing. Doing nothing. Accomplishing nothing.

On the other hand, from here there is only Love. Everyone and everything matters. Everyone and everything is forgiven. We just are.

In the practice of descending into the heart – attending to the heart, guarding the heart, putting the mind in the heart – we can begin to experience this unity from unity such that we “see” from unity rather than see just with the mind's binary vision. (Describing this as “seeing from unity” comes from Cynthia Bourgeault)
